

MALIBU FARM FAVORITES

HELENE HENDERSON started Malibu Farm on two acres of her Point Dume backyard in 2008, offering cooking classes and farm-to-table dinners alongside fruit orchards, vegetable gardens, 34 chickens, two goats, and one pot belly pig, Arnold. In 2013, she transitioned operations to a Scandinavian-inspired, Vanessa Alexander-designed restaurant located at the end of the Malibu Pier, which boasts sweeping, surfer-studded water views. Helene recently penned her second cookbook, MALIBU FARM Living the Dream, due out Fall, 2014. Inspired by her all-organic and whole-foods approach, we're delighted to share Helene's top food picks. malibu-farm.com

BOKISCH VINEYARD

"My favorite red wine is a Spanish varietal by Bokisch Vineyards, organically farmed in Lodi, California. They're certified green for sustainable wine growing practices, which falls in line with Malibu Farm's philosophy. The Bokisch Tempranillo 2011 has a silky, cedar, and maraschino cherry flavor with a hint of white pepper and licorice. When the café is closed and all the customers are gone, I love to relax with a glass of Tempranillo and a platter of cheese while assessing what went well that day and what we can do better the next. The Bokisch can be purchased online from the vineyard where they also have a tasting room. We offer it here at the café, too."

RUMIANO CHEESE

"Started in 1919, Rumiano Cheese is the oldest of the California cheese companies. Their cheeses are GMO-free certified, USDA organic, and from grass-fed cows. I love eating the creamy, natural, semi-soft Havarti cheese with Swedish-style Wasa flatbread crackers." 8oz, Whole Foods Market

JOHN KELLY CHOCOLATES

“John Kelly chocolates are made in the heart of Hollywood, produced by hand in small batches. They’re kosher and gluten-free. My favorite is the Walnut Caramel Cluster, a ball of buttery caramel hand-rolled with walnuts, coated in chocolate, and topped with sea salt. On my way home, driving north on PCH, I will eat more chocolate than I should. But, I LOVE chocolate and it is such a simple pleasure to end the day with, so I indulge.” A 4-piece assortment of Walnut Caramel Clusters with Mediterranean Sea Salt.
